Re: If you're not doing anything wrong then you have nothing to hide

Dear Mr. Eby:

There is an old saying which goes: "If you're not doing anything wrong then you have nothing to hide." I'm sure you're familiar with it. It's very popular with law enforcement and "justice system" types (e.g. police, prosecutors).

I agree with that saying. And, over the past five years, I have been completely, 100% open with the police, the prosecutors, the news media, you, and everyone else I have interacted with. I've repeatedly admitted to things which, while not illegal, certainly did not serve my interests and, at times, have created unnecessary challenges for me.

On the other hand, the BCPS has consistently and fervently fought against any efforts on my part to publish any information relating to my cases. In particular, the BCPS (namely Mark McInre, Bernie Wolfe, Chris Johnson, and David Layton) has actively worked to prevent me from publishing, and even from obtaining or possessing (due to their "stated" "concern" about me publishing), disclosure material relevant to, and even critical to my defenses.

So my question for you at this time, Mr. Eby, is: Can we (meaning me and the general public) assume from the BCPS's strong opposition to the publication of the disclosure material, transcripts, DARS recordings, et cetera, in my cases that they know they are guilty of doing very bad things in my cases? And, of course, you being the Attorney General, and by now being intimately aware of everything the BCPS has been doing in my cases, and the Attorney General being the authority the BCPS reports to, wouldn't that mean that you too are guilty of participating in those very bad things? Is that why you, also, don't want the material from my cases being published?

Mr. Eby, I hereby formally request you direct the BCTS to make all of the records and material related to all of my cases public - after all, if the BCTS isn't doing anything wrong then they have nothing to hide. Right?

Sincerely,

Patrick Fox
