Re: R. v. Patrick Fox;
Court of Appeal No. CA47391

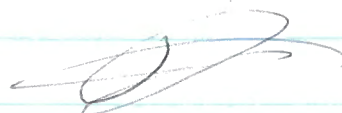

Dear Mr. Layton:

I am writing to address the concerns you expressed in your letter dated 2022-06-14, in response to my letter dated 2022-06-10.

Upon reviewing my 2022-06-10 letter, I find that I have not made any allegations against, or about, you. I merely stated my beliefs and the assumptions I had made. I was very careful to make sure that I clearly phrased each statement as my belief, not as an allegation. And, honestly, I don't see how it is any different than when you state you believe I stole the Crown's laptop. Or you believe I stole the Crown's hard drives. Or you believe I have control over the website. Or you believe I am the person writing and/or posting the content on the website.

Sincerely,
